Revenue-based leases with minimum guaranteed rent Protects downside, may limit early stage growth

- Rent is variable but cannot fall below a certain minimum level
- For variable rent to materialise, accumulated rent (i.e. hotel revenue) must exceed the accumulated minimum level
- Limits the downside when hotel revenue is low, but may also limit early stage growth when hotel revenue increase from low levels and do not exceed the accumulated "minimum level"
- > Minimum level depends on market practise, commercial considerations and contract age but is lower in the Nordic region

Hotel market development during Covid-19 Recap

- Covid-19 arrived in Northern Europe in March 2020
- Societies locked down and economic activity decreased substantially
- With restrictions lifted in June/July, a recovery started across Europe with domestic leisure as main driver
- > After the holiday period, local business travelers returned and Q4 looked promising
- > In October new restrictions were imposed, demand decreased substantially across all segments
- > The low demand environment continued in Q1 2021
- > Vaccination programs gaining speed and we are hopefully on the doorstep to eased restrictions

$\begin{array}{c} \text{Hotel markets ahead of Europe} \\ \textbf{China} \end{array}$

- > Hotel market in China first out in the recovery phase
- > The driver is domestic leisure followed by domestic business
- Meeting segment has improved significantly, large conventions are taking place
   Large cities like Shanghai and Beijing are improving
  - Strong domestic demand trend compensating for lack of international travellers

Hotel markets ahead of Europe China: Occupancy

16

Hotel markets ahead of Europe USA

> Successful vaccination rollout has led to eased restrictions and travel confidence
> Also here, demand is driven by domestic leisure and local businesses
> Early signs of meeting and event demand, however, still low levels
> April occupancy at around 80 percent of 2019 level...
> ...despite low meeting and event activity, and low international demand

Hotel markets outside Europe USA: Occupancy

Outlook It all depends on the restrictions

- Assuming Europe is a quarter behind the USA and the restrictions will decrease at the same rate...
- ...the recovery will start in Q2 2021 and the holiday period will be strong
- During autumn, the market will establish itself at level 4, supported by domestic leisure and local/regional business
- > Pandox has more than 80 percent of rooms in domestic and regional markets

Given the hotel market's weak start of the year and the design of the agreements, only limited variable revenue is expected in leases with minimum guaranteed rent in 2021

$\frac{Transaction\ market}{High\ prices\ -\ no\ distress}$

- The transaction market is gradually opening since the outbreak of Covid-19 approx. 15 major single acquisitions have been completed, which Pandox deems relevant
- > Hotel operators have been active sellers
- Interest in portfolios is increasing, but so far, few acquisitions have been completed
- The transactions confirm and exceeds Pandox's own valuations in the relevant markets
- > No distressed prices or distressed assets
